Breathitt Earmarks Large Amount For Library Work

Governor Edward T. Breathitt recently earmarked $650,000 of the $176 million bond issue going on the ballot in November 1965 for a new State library and headquarters for the Department of Libraries.

The Governor's announcement drew heavy applause from some 225 librarians, library trustees, and members of the Friends of Kentucky Libraries who gathered in Frankfort for the first Governor's Conference on Libraries.

($139 million worth of the general obligation bonds has already been earmarked for highway construction.)

For the construction of local library facilities, Breathitt said he has urged President Lyndon B. Johnson to appropriate funds under the recently passed Public Library Services and Construction Act. "It is my sincere wish that the President's recommendation for an appropriation of $55 million be accepted by the Congress soon. Of this amount, Kentucky would receive $930,000," the Governor said.

Breathitt added that specialized help for libraries in Eastern Kentucky will be forthcoming with approval of the Appalachian bill introduced in Congress recently. Breathitt said he will testify later this month in favor of the bill.

Cash grants-in-aid to local libraries have been increased 40 per cent to $140,000 in 1964-65, Breathitt added, and will go to $145,000 in 1965-66. The increase, he said, will provide extra payments to counties voting or petitioning for permanent local support of libraries and to upgrade salaries of local librarians in regions. Thirty Bookmobiles will be replaced with new vehicles during the biennium beginning July 1964, 10th anniversary of the Bookmobile project in Kentucky, Breathitt added.

I couldn't help but be distracted from service in my church Sunday. And you can take it from me, that's the understatement of the year. I was in one of those situations where a heart attack, an earthquake, or a fire would have been the most welcome tragedy ever to befall me.

Every waking moment since about 10:30 A. M. Sunday I have wondered what other people would have done in the same situation. As a matter of fact I'm thinking of sending the matter to the Miss America Pageant as one of those questions to ask the beauty finalists what they would do in such an event. As I think of it, I still want to perish from this earth.

I wore a new dress to Church. It was one of those silk sheath things that has a zipper half way down the back. I had on my favorite hat, had acquired a little sun-tan; the dress was white and as I gave myself a final look of approval in the mirror, I thought, "You're holding up pretty well for an old lady."

Mary Jo and I sat together in one pew. It was a beautiful day. I was so happy to be home after a hard week in Frankfort. I was glad to be with my family, my friends, and, to sum it up, I thought all was well with the world. But it wasn't. Jean Fenwick (bless her) and the other folks sitting in the pew behind me were having hysterics, apoplexy, and nervous exhaustion. Why? Horrors!

When I first sat down that miserable, dad-blasted, monster of a zipper split wide open from the top of my sun-tanned neck, to well beyond the waist line. I knew nothing, but nothing about it, and because of some rather tight undergarment (middle-aged spread, ya know) I couldn't feel a thing. Came time for the distribution of communion and I arose to approach the rail, from the third pew in church. Well, I went to the altar rail alright, but as I turned to return to my seat I saw somebody whisper to Mary Jo, who was at the Communion rail with me. When we got back to the pew, Mary Jo was hysterical. "Mother," said she, "you are coming undressed!"

As I reached behind me to feel the damage, I thought: "Lord if you'd only take me now, we'd save the expense of a funeral and having to bring me back." I tried to pull the zipper together. Mary Jo wanted to ask the lady in front of us to take off her jacket so she could throw it around me. Meanwhile I thought of leaving church. Then I realized that those few persons who didn't know what had happened, but could hear the commotion, would surely get clues in. I had visions of walking out of church to the strains of a guffaw-sniffed congregation.

What did I do? I just sat there with my back firmly against the pew. When the services were over, dear Jean Fenwick, who seems to be always near me when something catastrophic happens, leaned over and said: "I'll try to put the zipper together." She did on the first try, just enough to get the waist of the dress together. Later, and I must say there must be a place in heaven for zipper-snippers like Jean, she maneuvered the monstrous mechanisms of the zipper together so it would stay fastened until I could get home to collapse.

I couldn't help but think of (Continued on page ten)

The ceremony, at 12:15 p. m. Eastern Standard Time, is open to the public and Mrs. Paul Westpheling, executive director of the Kennedy Memorial Library Foundation of Kentucky, will be mistress of ceremonies.

It will commemorate the designation of May 24 as "Torch Sunday". This is the date set for a state-wide house-to-house canvass to be conducted by more than 800 student team captains, representing 294,500 public school pupils.

In Fulton Superintendent W. L. Holland is chairman of the local drive. He has appointed as team captains: Terry Thomas, Fulton High School; Mike Gilbert, Carr Elementary; Mike Hatfield, Terry-Norman and Linda Sue on the words of the late President Kennedy's in his famous inaugural address, "The torch is passed."

Funds solicited will go toward raising Kentucky's quota of $150,000 for the John Fitzgerald Kennedy Library to be built in Boston at a cost of ten million dollars.

Participating in the Frankfort ceremony will be public officials and trustees of the Kennedy Memorial Library Foundation headed by former Governor Bert Combs and William H. May, Frankfort industrialist.

Every contributor to the library will receive a membership in the Foundation and his name will be recorded in the library archives. Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, the wife of the late president, will acknowledge all contributions to the Kennedy Foundation.

The ceremony on the Capitol steps will be followed by a luncheon for Mrs. Kennedy, who will fly from Washington and be met by Combs, May and Mrs. Westpheling.

Mrs. Westpheling announced that special recognition will be given to the Johns Creek High School of Pike County, the first school to subscribe 100% to the library campaign. Each of the 435 students purchased Foundation memberships at $1.00 each. Mrs. Kennedy will present to the school a two-volume set of President Kennedy's private papers.

The ceremony will receive state-wide radio and television coverage.

IC Receives Citation For Dining Service

The Illinois Central Railroad has been recognized with a Gold Seal Citation from the United States Public Health Service for excellence in sanitation in dining cars for 1963. The Gold Seal Citation was awarded not only for sanitation performance during 1963, but also for the fact the Illinois Central had earned sanitation awards for the five consecutive years 1959 through 1963. The first Public Health Service Award was earned by the Illinois Central in 1957.

The Illinois Central is the only Chicago-headquartered railroad to receive six-time recognition and is one of two railroads of the nation to receive the Gold Seal Citation for 1963.

The 1963 award was received from Robert E. Novick, region program director of the Public Health Service, by Wayne A. Johnston, president of the Illinois Central.

Citations are awarded by the Public Health Service to transportation companies on the basis of results of federal inspection of food service equipment and general sanitation.

A Newly Elected Governor Can Avoid Lots Of Criticism If Top Assistants Would Cooperate

Governor Edward T. Breathitt this week-end takes State Government to the people. The practice that was inaugurated by former Governor Bert Combs, "premieres" at Hopkinsville this Saturday. Governor Breathitt has chosen his home-town for the first mobile government unit to operate during his Administration. The selection of Hopkinsville may prove to be a wise choice for the Governor in that his home-folks may gently prepare him for some sharp criticism that may come later regarding the policies and modus operandi of the Breathitt-Waterfield Administration thus far.

Governor Breathitt will have the usual number of callers Saturday, who will wish him well; ask for jobs; ask for roads and generally applaud and complain about various actions taken by Governor Breathitt during the infancy of his term of office.

We believe that the most prevalent criticism Breathitt will receive, as new Governors before him have received, is the almost ridiculous inability of friends and taxpayers to see Breathitt personally, or talk with him on the phone. It's understandable of course, that the head of a State Government simply cannot spend his every waking moment listening or visiting with everybody who has the urge to speak to a distinguished gentleman like a Governor. There would scarcely be time for attending to the affairs of State. We do not propose that.

What we do propose is a policy for the Governor's top assistants to be courteous, helpful and understanding with those persons who would like to see the Governor, but would just as soon get their problems solved by underlings, who end up doing the job anyway. Reasonable people understand that a Governor cannot personally attend to the thousands upon thousands of demands made of him. Yet, these same people find it difficult to accept the fact that it is becoming extremely more difficult to see an assistant than it is to see the Governor.

This is not to indicate that everybody surrounding Governor Breathitt and other top officials turn a cold shoulder on visitors or callers to the State Capitol. Far from it There are some capable and experienced Commissioners and assistants who never leave their offices at the end of the day without returning every telephone call and answering every letter that comes to their respective desks. These are the same people whose departments are run efficiently, harmoniously and with the welfare of the Commonwealth as a primary motive.

On the other hand, and this is ironic too, when you find an official more concerned with furthering his political career than doing business with the people who need help, you get just exactly what you expect... nothing.

Commenting on the indifferent attitude of some gubernatorial assistants to answer letters and return calls, etc. seems a penny-ante subject for an editorial; actually it isn't at all. When a newly elected Governor takes office every big and little politician on the campaign trail feels that the individual effort he expended toward electing said Governor is the ONE IMPORTANT strategy that assured final victory for the candidate. In this light then, this politician feels that he has the right to walk into the Governor's office for a visit just as he did the campaign headquarters.

While this would be a nice, friendly arrangement, everybody knows that it just cannot be. The next best thing, however, is to see or talk with somebody close enough to the Governor to be assured that the Chief Executive will get the message. Most people don't mind being told "no," they even enjoy "maybe," they relish being told "yes."

But Hell hath no fury like being ignored!

Governor Breathitt is a personable, hard-working, dedicated young man, loyal to his friends and eager to work towards significant progress for the Commonwealth of Kentucky. It's a shame, a real pity, to have him cussed, discussed and castigated simply because a would-be-empire-builder of an assistant doesn't have the good sense to take the time to be courteous and understanding to those problems facing the Governor's friends and supporters.

Many Kentucky Cities Solve Parking Problem With Municipally Owned And Operated Areas

While highway routing in the Fulton area has been a much debated subject for many years, the matter of ample parking for visitors and shoppers in our down-town area is close behind in importance. But our twin cities are not alone in this dilemma.

In a recent survey conducted by the Kentucky Retail Federation, the results showed that every town and city in Kentucky needs additional parking.

There are six different types of parking used in Kentucky, but by far the most satisfactory was Municipally Owned and Operated Off-Street Parking Lots. Many towns had one or more parking lots owned and operated by the city, but in every instance more were needed.

Elizabethtown, Kentucky, has the honor of being the best town in the State for parking. The survey showed that the public prefers angle parking preferably within 200 to 250 feet of where they wish to transact their business and have no objection to paying 5c to 10c per hour for this service.

Ivan Jett, Executive Vice President of the Kentucky Retail Federation, said "city governments have historically furnished parking for their citizens and others that transact business in their community, but unfortunately, many cities have neglected this responsibility. As a result, many downtown areas are dying. They seem to forget that the downtown area of every city is the most highly developed and pays more taxes per square foot than any other place in the city limits. Without adequate parking people avoid the area."

The survey also showed that most cities are purchasing the off-street parking lots with revenue bonds, which do not increase the tax rate and does not cost any one unless they use the parking lot.

100 Years Ago This Week

An historical review of the Civil War day by day in Kentucky, as reviewed by the Kentucky Civil War Commission
By JOE JORDAN

One hundred years ago this week, a Union Army order gave new impetus to the freeing of slaves in Kentucky, although President Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation had stated that it applied only to the states in rebellion. A news story in the Lexington Observer and Reporter said: "Capt. George W. Berry of the Sixth district has received orders to accept as recruits all Negroes who may offer themselves, regardless of the wishes of their owners."

"Any person interfering with the drafting or enlistment of Negroes will be promptly arrested. The provost marshal also has been instructed to accept Negroes as substitutes for white men." This was a reference to the rule that a man drafted for Union Army duty could employ someone to go in his place and would be immune to the draft as long as his substitute continued to serve.

Before the war, a Kentucky slave who ran away from his master had to be lucky to make his way to the Ohio River and get across it to the free soil of Ohio, Indiana or Illinois; even then under the law he was supposed to be returned to Kentucky by the officers of the free state, although public sentiment in the North often caused the Fugitive Slave Law to be ignored. Now all he had to do was to make his way to the nearest Union Army camp and offer himself as a recruit. Under another Army order, all Negro recruits were sent outside the state for training.

The Louisville Democrat reported: "Notices of runaway Negroes are a common occurrence, and scarcely a day passes that numerous notices are not received at the office of the chief of police in regard to this matter. On Sunday night the citizens of this county lost some twenty Negroes, men, women and children. Gb Mallory lost nine, consisting of one man, one woman, and seven children. It is generally believed that there is in this city and Jeffersonville a regularly organized band of persons who are engaged in this contemptible business."

Thus the number of slaves in Kentucky was shrinking daily, and all signs seemed to indicate that the shrinking would be accelerated, for every new law or rule that was adopted and every new Army order issued, tended in that direction. Yet slaves were still being advertised and sold and in each case that meant that somebody was investing his money in a kind of property that would soon cease to be property. From the vantage point of a century later, it seems strange that Kentuckians by 1864 had not come to a realization that slavery was doomed.

Political gatherings were becoming frequent, for 1864 was a presidential election year. Newspaper reports of such assemblies emphasized that even among the stoutest of Union men abolition was condemned as strongly as secession was. It was increasingly clear that President Lincoln would not get the electoral votes of his native state.

Kentucky Windage

By F. W.

"A Newspaper man's newspaper": Just received my April copy of the Journalism Alumni News from the University of Missouri. It had a lot of information in it about the coming "J" week activities up there that I would have liked to have known about beforehand. I think I might have driven up for some of them.

The trouble is, today is May 15, and "J" week was May 3-9.

I see where one of the best "wine cellars" in Paris is in the Eiffel tower, . . . the 400-foot-off-the-ground L. L. el.

All I can say is that's a most peculiar place for a cellar, of any kind.

I wonder if they have pent-houses in the sub-basements over there?

Was waiting out at the Fulton airport for Jo to arrive last week-end, when who should come in but Col. Paul Durbin, fresh out of Honolulu, for a 30-day visit with his mother and local friends.

Those of us who know Paul, know him to be a top-notch fellow, a very able lawyer with a lot of personality, and we will be delighted when he retires in December 1965 and brings his family back to Fulton to reside.

Paul is one of the top Army lawyers (Judge Advocate branch) in the Pacific, and works in and out of Hq. Pacific Command at Honolulu. He has been assigned a lot of special duty in and around Viet Nam, Cambodia, Laos, and that area in the past 10 years, but I don't believe he would trade West Kentucky for the whole Pacific. What's more, he keeps himself well-informed on everything going on around here, everything of where he is.

Paul arrived in typical service-man fashion: couldn't find any of the services with a plane coming to the midwest, was offered a free seat on a jet flying non-stop from the West coast to Charleston, S. C. and took it; and hedge-hopped back to Nashville and thence to Fulton. Where's a will, there's a way!

once I had in Kansas City once while I was still in the service. Was trying to get to Washington DC, but none of the eastbound flights were stopping there, although all of the westbound planes were. So I finally flew to the West coast in order to get a plane that flew non-stop from there to the East coast.

Where there's a will, there's a way. Like the lady who found herself locked out of her house one night and knew her ham-operator husband (who was inside) couldn't be roused because he was having his weekly chat with an operator in Australia. So she went down the street a block to the home of another ham operator, had him call another operator in the same Australian city, who phoned over and asked the fellow to tell his American friend to go unlock the front door and let his wife in. And it got results.

Most flower boxes in the front of downtown stores are sporting pretty flower arrays, but not quite all. To apologize for one bare planter in front of his place of business, the owner simply stuck a sign in the dirt: "Soil Bank".

Mom:—Chester, you've just got to be a better boy.

Chester:—How much will you give me for being good?

Mom:—How much! Chester, we don't pay little boys for being good . . . Why can't you be good for nothing . . . like your father?

Around-town: Work is progressing on the new 10-room addition to Hillview Hospital, and the new ultra-modern wing will have individual baths with each room . . . work is rolling along out at the Derby restaurant, with Hugh Fly & Company preparing a brand-new concept in restaurant service that sounds good . . . the grapevine has it that additional commercial area may soon take shape on the Tennessee side of West State Line, which leads us to wonder what good it did for those across the street on the Kentucky side to oppose rezoning of their side.

Telephone Talk

BY JIM CHAMPION

YOUR SOUTHERN BELL MANAGER

A way of life is disappearing from our society. Slowly but surely, the small home owned-home operated magneto switchboard is bowing from the Rural American Scene. This telephone system was a bridge to a more modern and faster telephone service.

In recent years—Cayce—Dukedom—Pilot Oak and Water Valley have been replaced by a more modern type of telephone service call "DIAL SERVICE". No longer can you call "CENTRAL" and ask her to ring you "so & so" or say, "Is 'so & so' down at the store". This was very personalized service and it played an important part in our society. The faster pace of our present day society dictates our telephone needs. Those needs require a FAST-TROUBLE FREE grade of service.

The rural customer now wants private lines, not eight party service. He wants the speed of electronics answering his calls. He wants reasonable rates. He wants his phone now, not later. His calling area now encompasses the "WORLD", not just down the road.

Breathitt Takes Six Big Steps For Safety's Sake

Governor Edward T. Breathitt, concerned over Kentucky's traffic death tolls, has announced six steps he will take in an effort to save lives on Kentucky's highways.

These measures, Breathitt explained, are the first part of an overall highway safety program he intends to push throughout his administration.

Last year, 837 persons died as a result of traffic accidents on Kentucky highways. This year's rate, Breathitt pointed out, is even higher. There have been 237 deaths since January 1.

"According to the present trend, Kentuckians can expect at least 4600 people to die as a result of wrecks on Kentucky highways during the next five years," Breathitt said.

"Over 54,000 traffic accidents were reported to the Department of Public Safety in 1963. At this rate, one out of every three Kentuckians is likely to be personally involved—either as a driver, passenger or pedestrian—in a traffic accident by 1969," Breathitt declared.

These are the initial steps Breathitt is taking in an effort to help cut what he termed "a tragic waste of human lives."

Breathitt will:

(1) Call a statewide conference of judges, prosecutors and police chiefs soon, to stress the need of effective enforcement of traffic laws by courts and enforcement officers.

(2) Call a state safety conference at an early date to help bring the message of traffic safety to as many Kentuckians as possible.

(3) Ask two national organizations, The Insurance Institute for Highway Safety and the National Safety Council, to study Kentucky's highway safety problems and provide recommendations for possible future legislative and administrative actions.

(4) Approve a statewide public education program on traffic safety, to be undertaken immediately by the Kentucky Department of Public Safety.

ately by the Kentucky Department of Public Safety.

(5) Establish a Citizen's Committee for traffic safety, to help implement safety action programs to be developed during coming months.

(6) Ask Public Safety Commissioner Glenn Lovern to re-evaluate Kentucky's driver point system to determine whether it is doing the job it should in saving lives on Kentucky highways. Lovern will be asked to submit to the Governor a report of his study and recommendations concerning the point system within 30 days.

"If a sudden tragedy demolished the population of the city of Shelbyville overnight, our entire nation would be horrified," Breathitt said. "The population of Shelbyville is 4,323. That figure is less than the number of people who—at present rate—will die within five years on Kentucky's highways."

"The tragic toll of deaths, injuries and economic loss on our roadways must be stopped," the Governor said. "I will support the adoption of needed state programs and use every resource at my disposal to obtain those programs which study and conviction indicate will save lives."

"State Safety officials must have the tools to get the job done. If those tools are such steps as strengthening the point system then we will take those steps," Breathitt stated.

"It is my firm belief that unless the states act individually to reduce traffic crashes, it is a certainty that the United States Congress will take steps in the foreseeable future to curb the accident toll. I feel that traffic safety is a state responsibility and it is incumbent upon me as Governor to shoulder that responsibility. Commissioner Glenn Lovern has the full support of my office in an intensive effort to reduce the traffic toll," Breathitt declared.

Commissioner Lovern said 54,529 traffic accidents were reported to the Department of Public Safety in 1963. "There were 337 deaths and 22,598 injuries."

"If all Kentuckians join in their best efforts, it is possible that many deaths and injuries can be prevented. If even one life is saved, the effort is worth while," he concluded.

Kentucky Vying for "Land of Lakes" Title

GREENBO LAKE at Greenbo Lake State Park, near Ashland, is one of the 30 reservoirs constructed by the State in a Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources program. The Department's Division of Fisheries stocked it with five species of fish. A beach and modern bathhouse and boat docks are other facilities on the 225-acre lake. Camping sites also are available at the park. Statewide, a total of more than 100 public lakes already in use, under construction, or planned will offer more than 300,000 liquid acres for swimming, fishing, boating, and other water recreation.

Teddy Barclay

"From the FHS Kennel"

Baseball is underway, and showing great potential at second base for Fulton High is Teddy Barclay. Not only has he proven himself a fine glove man, but has become a leading hitter on the team as well. This year he will receive his third letter.

Not being a one-sport man, Teddy finds that he can also excel in football and basketball. He has lettered twice in football and played guard during this year's successful 9-1 season.

Lettering three times in basketball, Teddy gave added strength to our team. He participated in both the district and regional tournaments.

This summer he hopes to obtain work on the railroad and plans to enroll next fall at the University of Kentucky.

First District Counties Named Disaster Areas

Congressman Frank A. Stubblefield today announced that Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman today designated 39 Kentucky counties as disaster areas eligible for emergency conservation assistance as a result of severe flood damage in March of 1964.

The Secretary also approved allocation of $840,000 in emergency funds to the Kentucky Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service for use in these counties in sharing with farmers the costs of emergency restoration measures under 1964 Agricultural Conservation Program.

Emergency measures for the flooded areas will include removing debris from farmland; shaping, grading, and filling eroded or silted land areas; removing debris from stream channels and stabilizing stream banks; cleaning out open drainage ditches; repairing tile drainage systems; repairing or replacing farm fences; restoring terraces, farm ponds, and sod waterways; and reseeding or improving damaged areas of permanent type vegetative cover.

Counties designated for emergency conservation assistance and in which the emergency funds will be made available in the First District are: Ballard, Butler, Caldwell, Calloway, Carlisle, Christian, Crittenden, Fulton, Graves, Hickman, Livingston, Lyon, McCracken, Marshall, and Todd.

Kentucky Officials Concerned Over New Illegitimacy Law, Federal Aid Money

Should government use the dispensing of welfare funds as a weapon to enforce society's moral code? The question is implied in a situation which Kentucky welfare officials are watching with more than casual interest.

They are concerned about a law enacted by the 1964 General Assembly and the reaction which federal welfare officials may have to it.

The law, signed by Governor Edward T. Breathitt, allows State agencies to go to court to ask that children be taken away from their parents if the mother has two or more illegitimate offspring.

The question which federal officials may ask is this: Will this law be used to remove illegitimate children from their families in order to remove the children from welfare rolls?

If the answer is yes, the federal officials are likely to object. They have the power to cut off Kentucky's share of welfare spending for children as a result.

Earle V. Powell, head of the State Department of Economic Security, which dispenses federal-State welfare money, said the questions will be threshed out next month when a team of federal officials reviews Kentucky's welfare program.

"Whether this bill will be okay, I don't know," Powell said. "My guess is that it does not jeopardize the federal aid, but we've got to ask."

Finance Commissioner Felix Joyner, who formerly coordinated State welfare programs, said the Federal Government has always kept a close watch on welfare legislation to prevent what it considers a bad practice—enforcing moral codes with welfare checks.

"Without question," Joyner said, "this new law runs counter to the federal feeling. How strongly we would have to enforce it to bring the wrath of the federal people down on us, I don't know."

Joyner said Administration officers studied the bill after the Legislature passed it and decided against recommending a veto by the Governor.

The mere existence of the law won't jeopardize federal funds, Joyner said, but there might be problems "if we used this law to engage in some bad welfare practices."

Previous legislatures have defeated bills that would have automatically cut off welfare payments to illegitimate children in families with several illegitimate children.

The legislators were told that such a law would mean a halt to federal funds because it would be discriminating against a single class of needy children—illegitimate.

The new law differs from the old proposals in two major respects:

First, it doesn't mention welfare payments.

Second, any action against the parents of illegitimate children is up to the discretion of the State agencies and is subject to court approval.

Powell feels that these factors, coupled with evidence of good intentions from State officials, may convince the federal administrators that the new law doesn't violate their philosophy.

Powell said, however, that many social workers fear the law could be misused.

The maximum welfare payment to a mother with four or five children to support is $160 a month, Powell said.

Overall this aid to dependent children is a big program in Kentucky. The State has budgeted $15,400,000 in federal grants for the coming fiscal year, to be matched with $4,400,000 in State money.

Another fund which provides medical aid for dependent children involves about $4,400,000.

The new law states:

"The fact of such multiple illegitimate births shall be prima facie evidence of the woman's unfitness to have custody and control of such children."

It also says that proof that the children are illegitimate "may be considered sufficient evidence upon which to base a judgment terminating parental custody and control."

ARA Approves Project For Industry Sites

Congressman Frank A. Stubblefield today announced that the Area Redevelopment Administration has approved a technical assistance project to identify prime industrial sites and prepare planning for development of industrial and recreational sites along Barkley Lake in Lyon and Trigg Counties.

About one-half the land areas of these two counties will be flooded by the 118-mile-long lake to be impounded behind a massive navigational flood control and hydroelectric dam now being constructed on the Cumberland River about thirty miles southeast of its mouth. The dam will be completed by October, 1966. With filling of the lake, however, the two county areas will gain a transportation link to the Ohio-Mississippi navigation system.

The lake itself will provide sites for industrial and recreational development. In addition to site identifications and preparation of master plans, the project will also provide preliminary cost estimates and recommend actions to be followed by the State and county groups for reserving and developing specific sites.

Total cost of the ten-month project will be $32,000. Of this sum, approximately $28,000 will be in ARA technical assistance funds.

Seniors Complete Research Themes

The Seniors are happy, carefree people since they completed their research themes April 29. The topics ranged from "Atomic Submarines" to "Satire in English Literature."

After each senior had selected a different topic, he obtained information concerning his topic from the surrounding libraries. Then the Seniors made note cards. On each note card they presented an idea about their topic and the source of the idea. Next they formulated a bibliography composed of the titles, authors, and such of all the books, pamphlets, and other literature from which they had acquired their information. Then they began writing their themes complete with footnotes.

Research themes are intended to prepare seniors for research in college. The theme reflects the degree to which the student has mastered written English.

Plan For Sudan Grass This Year.

Many years when we have ample moisture early in the year such as we had in April, we often forget how hot and dry the summer gets in July. All livestock men and this is especially true in dairying, should have a patch of sudan for that hot weather pasture. Sudan grass that is grown on fertile soil is a most productive forage crop. It makes substantial growth and provides abundant pasture during the very hot summer months.

Piper is the variety which will qualify for maximum yields according to tests with sweet and common sudan. Piper is reported to have a longer prussic acid potential, a higher resistance to leaf diseases, makes better growth in the very hot weather, and has excellent palatability.

Hay is seldom made from sudan grass because it is slow to dry, however with the hay conditioners of today, it is possible to cure hay from sudan. Sudan from the day it is seeded usually takes about 30 days to begin grazing, or about 14 to 18 inches tall. It should be left until the seed are in the hard dough stage before cutting for silage. The protein level usually runs slightly higher than corn silage but sudan silage will return about 20 percent less total digestive nutrients.

When grazing sudan we have already stated that the plants should reach about 18 inches tall. The purpose in this is two fold. First the sudan plant is a very rapid grower, and the root system does not develop as fast as does the top portion of the plant, thus it is very easily pulled loose. Many stands have been thinned severely when turn on too early. Next, the prussic acid content seems to be somewhat higher when the plant is short.

I would like to give you the benefit of farmer experiences which have been met with much success.

Plant sudan on land that will produce a top yield of tobacco or 100 bushels of corn. The very best land is the place for your sudan pasture.

50 pounds of actual Nitrogen per acre will be needed for desired production in addition to necessary fertilizer for the 100 bushels of corn. (potash and phosphorus) Make sure you have a clean seed bed, No Weeds Please!

Always use CERTIFIED seed
... remember the seed tag.

Sudan should be seeded when the soil warms, say from May 15 to June 10. The season will have much to do with this.

Set the wheat drill for 2 pecks for a rate of 24 to 25 pounds. I would suggest just a little tap or two passed the 2 peck mark for good measure, you know your drill better than I, so this will not be difficult.

and production if you will just follow a few of the management practices that have been proven successful.

I have one more suggestion to make if you are a dairyman and have a really good crop of sudan to use as pasture, ... be sure to order some extra cans when you turn into the sudan field this summer!

Mrs. O. F. Taylor

We are enjoying the nice sunny weather, after so many gloomy days.

Mrs. Evie Mitchell visited Mr. and Mrs. Clarence French over the weekend and attended Home Coming at Bethlehem Church last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Ruddle of Memphis and their daughter and baby were Saturday night guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Ruddle.

Miss Lila Mae Casey visited Mrs. Tremon Rickman a few days last week.

Mrs. Esta Moore is still not feeling as well as she'd like to. She had as guests late Sunday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. James E. Moore and Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Taylor.

Homecoming at Bethlehem Church was well attended last Sunday. Bro. Robt. Emerson, who was raised in this vicinity, brought the message at 11 o'clock. Lunch was served at the noon hour and singing was enjoyed in the afternoon. The Hawkins Quartet from Paducah were the guest singers.

Everyone enjoyed the singing. If you would like to hear them again, go to the Pilot Oak Baptist Church next Sunday, May 24.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbie Ruddle called on the Oliver Taylors Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Tremon Rickman were guests in the Harmon Rickman home Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Moss Batts and children, Mrs. Maude Crittenden and Mrs. Carol Moore, of Fulton ate supper with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Yates recently.

Mrs. Evie Mitchell is visiting the Herbie Ruddies this week.

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. House and Mrs. Ruth Weems were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Boaz House.

The family of Commodore Webb have our sympathy in the loss of their brother. Mrs. Bernice Glisson and Mrs. John Mathis are sisters and Calvin Webb is a brother.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Yates visited Mr. and Mrs. Zell Singleton Sunday afternoon.

The reason Cupid makes so many bad shots is that he is aiming at the heart while looking at the hostility.

Your Wisest investment of time... REGULAR CHURCH WORSHIP

"I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord."

BEACHED... and forgotten!

This old forgotten boat is almost buried in the reeds. Can this boat in any way be compared to our talents? What of these talents that God has given us? Have they been beached, forgotten, buried?

Heaven expects us to help in this matter of creating a better world where brother helps brother by using to the fullest extent the talents He has bestowed upon us. God always provokes and prods mankind to do good works, and accomplish great things. And He says that if we dedicate ourselves to this matter He will help. But the decision to use our talents and develop them is our choice.

Attend church this Sunday and begin to learn how God would have you use these gifts He has given you.

THE CHURCH IS GOD'S appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

NOTEBOOK—

something I often heard as a little girl. "All dressed up and nowhere to go." Nowhere but hug the back of that pew until everybody walked out of church.

Picture yourself sometimes, in the front row of your church, with the back of your dress all apart. And I thought I was looking good for my age. You should see me today... not even Helena Rubenstein's magic formula can take the wrinkles away from the 50 years I aged in 25 short minutes. And do you know what? Paul, who was in the choir loft, saw the dress unzip, looked at the tragic circumstances all during the services, and was helpless to do anything to rescue me. But I thought there was some kind of a sly grin on his face when we met after church.
